

YF 503: YOUTH OUTREACH AND EVANGELISM. (4 UNITS) Chapman Clark, Associate Professor of Youth, Family, and Culture; Online Facilitation by Cheryl Crawford, Adjunct Instructor in Youth Studies

DESCRIPTION:

This course explores the biblical mandate to "go and make disciples" as it relates to the adolescent subculture. Students will learn how to articulate and pass on to others a biblical, theological and practical understanding of evangelism and outreach. Through readings, lecture, projects, and discussion, students will learn how to design an incarnational ministry program as well as relational ministry program, which take seriously Christian care and evangelism with unbelieving young people. Issues covered are: the content and message of the Gospel as it relates to an age-specific population, contemporary models of youth evangelism, and the partnership and networking of local parishes and the parachurch.

RELEVANCE FOR MINISTRY:

As a result of this course the student will be able to articulate and pass on the biblical principles which influence outreach and evangelism as well as a biblical and theological view of evangelism and outreach. The student will be given the tools to assess and critique contemporary youth ministry models and develop a biblically sound, culturally relevant, and practically feasible theology of youth outreach and evangelism. Upon this theological base the student will design an incarnational as well as relational ministry program which takes seriously Christian care and evangelism in contemporary adolescent culture. The student will develop an appreciation for the thoughts and motivation of the secular person, and an understanding of how the Spirit works in the lives of those we are trying to reach.

COURSE FORMAT:

The class will be conducted on the Internet using a 10-week lesson program aligned with Fuller's academic calendar. Each week students and the instructor will interact with the material examining key themes associated with evangelizing the youth culture through journaling, threaded discussions, and web-based research.
