

MR550: INTRODUCTION TO ISLAM (4 units) J. Dudley Woodberry, Professor of Islamic Studies;
Online Facilitation by Robin Basselin, Adjunct Instructor in Islamics.

DESCRIPTION:

An overview of Muslim faith and practice with special attention to comparisons with Christianity, varieties of expression, and their implications for Christian witness.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

- Acquire an overview of the field of Islamic studies as a basis for further specialized study and ministry.
- Understand the similarities and differences between Christian faith and Islamic faith and their varieties in order to form a basis for relevant Christian-Muslim interaction.

COURSE FORMAT:

The class will be conducted on the Internet using a 10-week lesson program aligned with Fuller's academic calendar. Each week students and the instructor will interact with the material provided to the class through audio and visual presentations. This interaction will be through journaling, threaded discussions and live Internet "chats", and web-based research.

REQUIRED READINGS:

If already read, select other books from a supplementary reading list or book approved by instructor.

- "The World of Islam: Resources for Understanding" CD-ROM. Colorado Springs, CO: Global Mapping International 2000. (includes all required readings except Moucarry and about 60 books and articles, plus maps, pictures, and annotated bibliography.
- Braswell, George W., Jr. Islam: Its Prophet, Peoples, Politics and Power. Nashville, TN: Broadman and Holman Publishers, 1996.
- Kateregga, Badru D. and David W. Shenk. Islam and Christianity: A Muslim and a Christian in Dialogue. Nairobi: Uzima Press, 1980 (reprint).
- Moucarry, Chawkat. The Prophet and the Messiah. Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2001.
- Qur'an. Preferably the translation of A. Yusuf Ali or A. J. Arberry (Macmillan).

ASSIGNMENTS:

1. Weekly Threaded Discussions, Journaling, Web surfing and research, and "chat" time.
2. Interaction reports on each required book.
3. Term Paper due the last day of the quarter in which you evaluate the qur'anic Jesus and suggest how it can serve as a bridge for interpreting the biblical Jesus.
4. Th.M. Students only: Write a biblical perspective on Muhammad (5 pages—please note you will be advised of relevant books to research).

PREREQUISITES:

None.

RELATIONSHIP TO CURRICULUM:

Foundational course for Islamic Studies concentration. Meets Min 8 requirement for M.Div. Program. Meets Globalization requirement for M.A. Theology Program. Foundational Studies in MA in Global Leadership program. NO AUDITORS

FINAL EXAM:

None